2. Cookies

A cookie is a small text file that is stored in the user’s web browser (e.g. Internet Explorer, Google Chrome, Firefox) on the user’s computer (or other device with internet access, e.g. smartphone or tablet). This file ensures that the visitor of our website can easily and quickly retrieve the personalised content whenever they return to a website they have been before. The information from cookies is accessible only to the server of the company that created them, not to any other. A cookie is only a “passive” file, it does not contain any other software programs that could run on the user’s device with internet access (computer, smartphone, tablet, etc.). Our website uses cookies. Cookies help us manage our website, provide its basic functionality, and help us understand how users use our website. We also use cookies for analytical and statistical functions, such as recording the country of origin of our website users and the methods they use to visit our website. Cookies also help us serve relevant advertising and personalize our website. For more information about cookies, please visit <http://www.allaboutcookies.org/>.

Specifically, we use the following types of cookies:

- a) necessary cookies that ensure the proper functioning of our website, for example, they provide the function of logging into a user account on the website or allow you to switch between language versions of our website and ensure that your language selection is remembered. You can disable these cookies by changing your browser settings, but the website may not function properly without them. For more information on how to change your browser settings, please see the section below on Disabling/Deactivating cookies. We process these cookies on the legal basis of pre-contractual/contractual relationships and the legitimate interest of the Company.
- b) analytics cookies help us analyse how you navigate our website, what content is relevant to you and also learn more about the demographics of our users. We process these cookies on the legal basis of your consent.
- c) profiling cookies, help us to tailor the content of our website to your interests (profiling). We process these cookies on the legal basis of your consent.
- d) advertising cookies are used to display targeted and relevant advertising. We process these cookies on the legal basis of your consent.

Some cookies are deleted from your device after you close the browser window (session cookie), other remain stored on your device even after you stop browsing our website (permanent cookie). For information on how long individual cookies are stored, please see the list of used cookies below.

We inform users about the use of cookies on our website via a banner located at the bottom of the website.

For more information about the processing of personal data and your rights as a data subject, please read the Privacy Notice.

3. Benefits of Using Cookies

A cookie is a file that contains information from the user's web browser and from a specific web server.

If the web browser accesses the web server again, the server can retrieve this information more easily and quickly and respond to the data that is stored in it.

The company uses this technology on its site to better integrate the services it offers to clients.

This includes targeted advertising on the site, processing of forms on the website, as well as the safe and error-free operation of the services.

Thanks to cookies, we are able to continuously improve and enhance not only our website, but also the services and offers we provide to all our clients.

4. Disabling/Deactivation of Cookies

If you do not want cookies to be collected, you can also restrict, block or delete them by changing the configuration of your internet browser. Although the settings vary from browser to browser, the cookie configuration is usually found in the menu "Preferences" or "Tools". Please note, however, that if you block the cookies, the functionality of our website may be limited, and in the case of necessary cookies, you may not have access to our website.

If you wish to prevent the installation of new cookies or wish to remove existing cookies, please see the links below for instructions. Please note that the specific procedure depends on the browser you are using.

Google Analytics

This service from Google Inc. is an analytical tool that allows us to generate statistical outputs about the traffic on our website by storing information in cookies. This functionality is not necessary for browsing and is used by us to monitor website traffic and to improve it. When using Google Analytics, the company does not process any personal data or other identifiers that can be used to indirectly identify (e.g. IP address) the data subjects. However, this does not mean that your personal data is not processed in this way by Google Inc., which is the operator of Google Analytics.

The main cookie used by Google Analytics is the __ga file. You can learn more about the types of cookies used by Google Inc. here: <https://policies.google.com/technologies/cookies?hl=en#types-of-cookies>

In addition to reporting on our website usage statistics, Google Analytics can be used in conjunction with some advertising cookies to serve more relevant ads from Google Inc. (based on search history and activity on our website) as well as to measure interactions with Google Inc. display ads.

Google Analytics also uses cookies to analyse your behavior on our website, which are stored on the device of the end user of the website (computer, tablet, smartphone). Google anonymises the part of the IP address associated with the device of the end user of our website as soon as it is obtained, thereby strengthening the protection of your privacy. Google Inc. uses the information obtained during the use of the website to evaluate your use of our website, issue us reports on activities on the website and provide us with other services related to the use of our website and the use of the Internet. This data processing by the Google Analytics service can be prevented by suitable internet browser settings, in which you install the browser plug-in (add on) available via the following link: <https://tools.google.com/dlpage/gaoptout?hl=en>.

After clicking on the above link, an opt-out cookie will be saved in your internet browser to prevent future data collection when you visit the website. For more information on the terms and conditions for the processing of your personal data by Google Inc. when using Google Analytics, please read the Privacy Policy, <https://policies.google.com/technologies/partner-sites?hl=en>.

Social networks

We recommend that you familiarise yourself with the privacy policies of the providers of the social media platforms through which we communicate. The information published by us explains only the basic issues related to the management of our profiles on social networks. We only have the typical administrative rights when processing your personal data through our profiles set up on social media. We assume that by using social networks you understand that your personal data is primarily processed by the providers of the social networking platforms (such as Facebook, YouTube, Instagram, Twitter) and that we have no control over and are not responsible for this processing, the further disclosure of your personal data to third parties and the cross-border transfer to third countries carried out by these providers of the social networking platforms. For more information on the processing of personal data by social network operators, please see the description below of the specific services that the Company may use in the professional use of social networks and in the management of the profiles that we have set up on social networks.

Facebook and Instagram

The social media plug-ins ("plug-ins") of the social network Facebook Inc., 1601 South California Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94304, USA ("Facebook") are integrated on our website. When you visit our website, Facebook receives information that you have visited the website with your IP address. If you click on the Facebook icon available on our website while you are simultaneously logged in and/or registered for your Facebook account, the content of the website will be redirected to your Facebook profile. Facebook can then associate your visit to the website with your user account. The data transfer takes place regardless of whether you have a Facebook account or not. The company would like to point out that when using our website, Company has no influence on the data collected and the data processing processes, and we are also unaware of the total scope of the data collected, the purpose of the processing or the storage periods of the data. Facebook stores the collected data about you as user profiles and uses it for its own advertising, market research and/or to tailor its services and tools to registered users. Such evaluation is mainly carried out in order to inform other Facebook users about your activities on our website. You have the right to object to the creation of such user profiles by contacting Facebook. After you have finished using Facebook, we recommend that you always log out, in particular to avoid having your internet activity linked to your profile. For further information on the purpose and scope of data collection and processing by Facebook, please refer to Facebook's Privacy Statement at the following link: <https://www.facebook.com/policy.php>.

We would also like to inform you that we may use services provided by Facebook Ireland Limited, which are labelled "data file custom audiences" - audience management for the execution of advertising campaigns, whereby the data processed by us may be combined with personal data processed in Facebook's databases and "measurement and analytics", whereby Facebook processes personal data on our behalf in order to measure the performance and impact of our advertising campaigns and to provide us with reports of users who have seen and responded to our advertising content. This processing of your personal data may therefore occur if you interact with our advertising content or our website when using your user profile set up on Facebook. In such cases, we use Facebook as a processor, and the following legal safeguards apply to the processing of your personal data: <https://www.facebook.com/legal/terms/businessstools> , <https://www.facebook.com/legal/terms/dataprocessing>.

If you are concerned with the processing of personal data explained above, you can object to it or you can also use the available self-regulatory tools developed for the online marketing sector, which are available here: <http://www.aboutads.info/choices> and <http://www.youronlinechoices.eu/>. These online tools will allow you to automatically identify third-party digital identifiers (including those from Facebook) in your browser and delete them, thus preventing possible processing of your personal data.

6. Governing law

The use of this website is governed by the laws of the Slovak Republic.

7. Final Provisions

This document on the use of cookies on the website was published on October 27, 2023.

By accessing the website and/or all sites or any site linked to it, I agree to be bound by the terms and conditions described above.
